July grand jury submits report to Judge Vlahos

The July Grand Jury completed a one week term with the presentation of its report to Circuit Judge Kosta Vlahos late Friday.

Following is the text of the report:

We, the members of the Grand Jury for July, 1984 Term of Court, having been duly selected, sworn and charged, submit the following report:

We were empaneled July 9, 1984, and have considered 100 cases on which we returned 81 true bills, four no true bills, remanded seven to lower courts, passed two to the successive Grand Jury, and combined six other cases herein reported.

The Grand Jury recommends that the January, 1985 Grand Jury be furnished copies of this report as its first order of business. All county supervisors and administrators of the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland are to be furnished copies of this report as well as U.S. Senators Thad Cochran and John Stennis; also Congressman Trent Lott, State Senators Martin Smith and Eugene Taylor and State Representatives Walter J. Phillips and Curtis Holston, and specifically Attorney General Ed Pittman of the State of Mississippi.

We recommend the duly elected supervisors of the county read and study the findings and recommendations of this Grand Jury and make them a part of the board minutes.

Supervisors told funds available for beach repair

By DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors was informed Thursday that about $25,000 may be available through the Bureau of Marine Resources to start a beachfront repair project in Hancock County.

According to Jeff Taylor of Gulf Regional Planning Commission, the money could be used for a feasibility study on a master plan for beachfront rehabilitation that includes possible construction of a commercial fishing harbor at Bayou Cadet.

The board made no decision whether to apply for the money Thursday but discussed emphasizing the Bayou Cadet project rather than the entire plan, since there is presently no commercial harbor in the county.

Further discussion and possibly some action beginning the application process for obtaining the funds is expected Monday.

In other business, the supervisors voted to award a plaque commending Edith Ruhr, who is retiring from employment with the assessor-tax collector's office after 25 years of service to the county. They also authorized Assessor Edward Murtagh to find a replacement for Mrs. Ruhr.

The supervisors also announced that a public hearing on the establishment of a bird-sanctuary in Shoreline Park will be held August 30 at 10 a.m.

Other business included officially declaring the county youth court building to be part of the courthouse, approving a residential lease on 16th section land, and a decision to advertise for bids on a used fire truck for the Leetown Volunteer Fire Department.

We recommend that all citizens and officials work through the Citizens Jail Committee to promote the necessary

Guilbeau/Ladner trial reset for August 23

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

The trial of Virginia Guilbeau, Gregory Ladner, Ivan Martinez-Junco and Raul Rojas-Lazardo on charges of possession with intent to distribute some 5,000 pounds of marijuana has been reset for Aug. 23.

The trial was scheduled in April to be heard July 18.

But both William Dukes, attorney for Guilbeau and Ladner, and Albert Necaise, attorney for Martinez-Junco, asked Circuit Judge Kosta N. Vlahos Friday for a continuance, pleading they need more time for defense preparation.

Dukes said he had not proceeded with defense activities pending Tuesday's ruling by U.S. District Judge Walter L. Nixon refusing a request to bar state prosecution of Guilbeau and Ladner.

During a hearing Friday Dukes indicated Nixon's decision might be appealed.

"I am at a loss to understand the tenacity with which the state is insisting on a trial at this time," Dukes said.

"In effect it would be shutting us off from the opportunity of appealing the district court decision."

Dukes also reiterated arguments he made earlier this week that John Chase of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration is a 'vital' witness.

Chase, Dukes said, is on administrative leave for several weeks because his wife underwent serious exploratory surgery Tuesday.

Dukes said Wednesday that Chase would testify as to the degree of

Waveland Wastewater alternate plan gets state FY'84 priority

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District has been placed on the Fiscal Year 1984 priority list for 75 percent funding after a Wednesday hearing in Jackson, according to John Longo, district chairman.

Longo said, "At the Natural Resource Commission's Bureau of Pollution Control hearings held in Jackson for wastewater districts throughout Mississippi, the Waveland District has been locked into the 75 percent funding for fiscal year '84."

"As the state hearings were completed, a vote was held by the commission members, and Waveland District's placing on the fiscal year '84 was approved by a 7-0 vote," Longo stated, adding, "I am happy the district has been placed on the priority list by the state."

Larry Bennett, district member, was also happy with the decision made at the hearings saying, "I think we stand an excellent chance of receiving funding for the alternate plan. Even though, I am sorry the spray irrigation system was shot down because of federal guidelines."

The district was seeking a spray irrigation system but was turned down by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in Atlanta because the system was not the most cost effective, environmentally-sound alternative.

Ethel Schott, district administrator, as well as the two mayors of the cities involved in the wastewater system, were all elated over the fiscal '84 funding, because in 1985 it will drop to 55 percent for districts then approved.

In addition to Longo, Bennett, Schott, Lucien Gex, district attorney, and Ray Eaton, engineer attended the Wednesday hearings.

"Harrison County's delegation even made a bid at the funds the Waveland District was seeking because the spray irrigation system was recently shot down," Longo said.

The new plan is a revision of the 201 plan and calls for a process using the existing treatment systems and would discharge treated wastewater into Edwards Bayou.

Some construction will be required because the treated wastewater from Bay St. Louis is presently discharged into Watts Bayou and will have to be transported to the Waveland treatment plant and then to Waveland wastewater discharge in Edwards Bayou.

Schott stated, "The engineering firm (Louis Eaton) is working on plans and specifications for the alternate plan and they should be ready for July 23. They have to be on display at the Bay St. Louis and Waveland city halls, libraries, in addition to the Hancock County courthouse."

A public hearing for these plans will be held.

Indictments quashed on possession charges

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

Circuit Judge Kosta N. Vlahos has sustained a motion to quash eight indictments brought against Stacey Lizana by the January grand jury.

Lizana, of Pass Christian, was acquitted by a jury last July on a charge of possession with intent to distribute various controlled substances on Aug. 3, 1982.

She was reindicted in January on possession charges.

Her attorney, Davey Tucker of Jackson, argued that the new indictments placed Lizana under double jeopardy.

"Everything is the same on the new indictments," he said.

"The facts are the same, the witnesses are the same, the issues are the same."

"The state took its best shot and presented it to the jury," Tucker said.

"And the jury found her not guilty." "There's nothing different here for a new jury to consider."

OTHER PROCEEDINGS

In other court matters this week:

—Charles Edward Teague, 32, of Waveland pled guilty Thursday to a charge of escaping from the Hancock County Jail Oct. 21 while serving a sentence for burglary convictions.

He was sentenced to five years' imprisonment to run consecutively with the ten-year sentence for the burglaries and concurrently with a five-year sentence for a prior jail escape.

—A mistrial was declared in a case charging Thomas E. Haas, 20, of Kiln, with driving under the influence because it was stated in the presence of the jury empaneled to hear the case that Haas had previously been found guilty of the charge in city court.

—A charge against George Edwin Singleton, 18, of BaySide Park for public drunkenness was dismissed Thursday when prosecution witnesses failed to appear to testify.

—Defense Attorney Boyce Hollman's motion for separate trial was granted on behalf of his client Archie Boyd Blackwell III, 17, of Bogalusa, La., charged with armed robbery of Sellers Grocery March 20 along with Bert Lee Hall, 19, of Lumberton and John Travis Young, 15, of Bogalusa.

—The trial of Frank Turner, 51, of Bay St. Louis, on charges of murder and aggravated assault was continued until the October court term.

Turner, also represented by Hollman, is charged with murdering Lewis E. Meyers Sr. and shooting Kenneth Meyers, both on Feb. 15 in the parking lot of Asher's Grocery store near US-90.

Citizens want changes in waterway speed limits

By DENA BISNETTE

After voting to establish speed limits on some of Hancock County's waterways, the supervisors have found themselves faced with a controversy.

Two groups of citizens attended the Thursday board meeting, including representatives of a Diamondhead neighborhood who want the speed limit lifted and representatives of a Jourdan River Shores group who want the area covered by the speed limit extended.

The board's original decision limited boat speeds to five mph for canals in Shoreline Park and in parts of Diamondhead including waterways off Rotten Bayou and from Cutoff Bayou to the Diamondhead Yacht Club.

A 10 mph limit was set for the Jourdan River west of Highway 603.

The Jourdan River Shores residents want the speed limit extended past McLeod Water Park as far as Bayou Talla.

"We could catch a lot of flak from people if we extended this into the Jourdan because that's a recreational river," said Beat Five Supervisor James Traverica.

Although no action was taken, the board caught some flak from the second group of citizens, who submitted a petition signed by eight people with homes on Rotten Bayou. They asked that the order for the five mph limit in that area be rescinded.

"We feel the speed limit was set undemocratically, without telling the majority of landowners in the area and we feel it will encourage other small groups of property owners to demand limits. The first we heard about it was when we read it in the paper," said Betty Nolan, one of the spokesmen for the group.

Another spokesman, Dallas Salisbury, said he felt it would be detrimental to the Rotten Bayou area if speed limits were imposed because it would prohibit waterskiing and other water sports. He said the availability of a place to ski is one of the bayou's major attractions for homeowners.

Salisbury also said that one of the main reasons cited for the original request to limit the speeds, the possibility of shoreline erosion caused by boat wakes, does not apply along the bayou.

He explained that he and at least one of his neighbors have built bulkheads to stop the erosion, and added that the operator of a boat has some control over how large his boat's wake will be.

"Another thing that bothers me is once you start controlling speeds, people who don't like skiers will get together and post their signs, and then you won't be able to ski because you'll have to slow down in so many places," Salisbury added.

Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner advised that the board make a physical inspection of both areas before making any decision. The board meets again Monday, before the limits imposed by the original decision become effective, and action on both requests is expected at that time.

cooperation given by his clients and promises of immunity given to them.

Friday he said he believed Chase would say that in his opinion Guilbeau was "devoid of any criminal intent on her part to possess the marijuana with intent to distribute."

Dukes said Guilbeau did accompany her son to the site where the truckload of marijuana was picked up and brought to her home.

"But I think his testimony would be that in his opinion that was not her marijuana."

"I never specifically asked him that specific question, but from comments regarding their overall conversations I believe he would testify that," Dukes said.

Necaise told the court he became involved in the case in late April when he was asked represent Martinez-Junco in a bond reduction hearing.

He said he had no knowledge the case was set for July 18, but Vlahos pointed out that Martinez-Junco had signed a waiver of arraignment in April which contained the July 18 trial date.

Necaise said his client, who was arrested in Slidell, La., claims he has never been in Mississippi.

His client, Necaise noted, also faces charges in Texas as well as federal charges.

"The federal government doesn't know what they're going to do," Necaise said.

District Attorney Cono Caranna argued that the two defense attorneys failed to demonstrate a need for delay.

"I don't believe Mr. Dukes met his burden to demonstrate Chase is a material witness," he said, noting that four other DEA witnesses were available for trial next week and could testify as to the investigation that followed the March 24 drug raid at the Guilbeau residence on Firetower Road.

"I am aware of no authority that would require the court to wait on proceedings in federal court or in Texas," Caranna said.

Vlahos noted that he could not reschedule the trial to the October term because of his own heavy schedule, and set the case for trial in August after asking both attorneys to call their offices to make sure they would be available for trial then.

Motions in connection with the trial, he ordered, must be filed and disposed of next week.

"Federal, state and local officials are expected to be on hand to answer questions and receive comments from the public at the Aug. 6 hearing," Longo said.

The district chairman reported after the Atlanta meeting, "The alternate plan was a good compromise as the residents of Jourdan River objected to the state's proposal of a discharge from Edwards and Watts Bayou to the river."

Schott, who has a bachelor of science degree in chemistry, was praised by both Longo and Bennett on her presentations on behalf of the district before the Bureau of Pollution Control.

Schott stated, "The engineering firm (Louis Eaton) is working on plans and specifications for the alternate plan, and they should be ready for July 23, as they have to be on display at the Bay St.

bond issue scheduled for the November election.

Our observations at the jail included:

1. grossly outdated building
2. fire hazard
3. improper ventilation
4. overcrowded conditions
5. unacceptable escape risk for the county

6. limited kitchen space

7. unsanitary bath facilities

We recommend that the crowded conditions in the jail could be temporarily alleviated by securing another facility where non-violent prisoners could be housed.

Said jail conditions present a clear and present danger to the citizens of Hancock County in as much as we could be held liable for the operation of the jail in its present condition.

The Sheriff's Department is operating under very crowded conditions. After observing the professional investigative work done by the officers in this department, we feel a salary increase is warranted.

HANCOCK GENERAL HOSPITAL

After our visit with Mr. Langston, we make the following recommendation:

1. That the county contract with Gulfport Memorial Hospital to house all overnight lunacy cases until they can be transported to the state hospital, or that such patients be held at Hancock General Hospital only under court order in order to relieve the county of liability for these patients.

This Grand Jury further submits the following general recommendations:

PREPARING GRAND JURY FOR DUTIES

We recommend the following:

1. The Grand Jury Handbook should be updated and provided to the jurors.

2. That a brief presentation on county government organization and functions be made to the Grand Jury by the Chancery Clerk.

COUNTY REPORTS

In order for the Grand Jury to properly evaluate the operation of those county officers in accordance with the jury's charged duty, the grand jury must have available to it clear and well organized information concerning such operations.

Accordingly, it is our recommendation that mandated reports made by county officers to the grand jury be made in a concise manner and be supported by printed handouts or posters.

These reports should review the following elements at a minimum:

1. Functions and duties of the office;

2. Office budget for the current fiscal year and the current balances, liabilities and anticipated revenues;

3. The office's workload since the last report to the grand jury in terms of types and numbers of action;

4. Any improvements in procedures or other matters;

5. Any problems in the operation of the office;

6. Any other matters which the officer wishes to discuss with the grand jury.

The report is signed by Alonza Clayborn Jr., who served as foreman of the Grand Jury.

Walter J. Phillips named to tax study committee

The committee has been requested to make recommendations providing for long-range financing of state government, including sufficient revenue sources to fund the Education Reform Act of 1982, salary increases for state employees and school teachers and other state needs.

It will be necessary, Newman said, for this tax study committee to coordinate its efforts with the interim highway study committee charged with the responsibility of recommending permanent fundings to the state highway department for the maintenance and construction of highways.

Other members of the tax study committee are H.L. Merideth, chairman;

Charles V. Williams, vice chairman; and Harris L. Bryan, secretary.

Also, E. Frederick Dobbins; Timothy A. Ford; Rick Fortenberry; Hillman T. Frazier; W.L. Grist; Edward G. Jackson; Royce B. Luke; Robert J. Moody; James D. Nunnally; Will Green Poindexter; W. Terrell Stubbs; Gus Townsend; and Thomas H. Walman.

MHP names Jones head of driver services

Rankin County native Jerry A. Jones has been promoted to captain and placed in charge of the administrative division of the Mississippi Highway Patrol's Driver Services Bureau.

The division is made up of driver records, driver improvement, implied consent, safety responsibility and statistics branches.

"The functions of this division affect the 1.7 million licensed drivers in this state from the maintenance of their driving records to implementation of the Safety Responsibility Law," Col. George Saxon, chief of the highway patrol, said.

"Capt. Jones' past performance as an administrator speaks for itself. We are confident the expertise he brings to this position will be of value of the highway patrol," Saxon said.

As administrative division director, Jones is second-in-command of the Driver Services Bureau, one of the largest sections of the highway patrol.

Jones, 43, was top scorer when he and one other applicant were administered a written test under guidelines established by the highway patrol's merit promotion system.

They were interviewed by a five-member board made up of Commissioner of Public Safety James L. Roberts Jr.; Col. Saxon; Lt. Col. Kenneth Dukes, assistant chief; and two others.

An 18-year MHP veteran, Jones is filling the position left vacant by the July 31 retirement of Capt. Norris Walker. The newly-named captain has served as director of the safety responsibility branch for the last three years.

From 1979 until 1981 he was assistant inspector in the Jackson District.

Jones was in the first MHP class that graduated from the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers' Training Academy after it opened in 1966. Upon being commissioned into patrol service he was assigned to serve in Clinton, later transferring to Pelahatchie.

Jones graduated from Morton High School and attended East Central Junior College.

In 1959 he joined the United States Navy, serving until 1963 in the aviation unit. For the past 10 years he has served in the Mississippi Army National Guard with the rank of first sergeant.

Jones is past master in the Pelahatchie Free and Accepted Masons Lodge. He is York Rite, 32nd Degree Scottish-

Rite Mason, a Shriner and a Gideon.

He is also a member of the Mississippi Cattleman's Association and a member of the Noncommissioned Officers' Association of the Mississippi National Guard.

Professional affiliations include memberships in Tennessee-Mississippi Sheriffs and Peace Officers Association and Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers' Association.

Jones is married to the former Margaret Watts, daughter of Mrs. Letha Watts of Star. He is the father of two daughters, Natalie Keller and Renee Jones; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Gay Searcey, and two stepsons, Michael and Mark Bilbro. He has three grandchildren.

Jones is son of Mr. and Mrs. A.D. Jones of Pelahatchie. He and his family are members of Rehobeth Baptist Church in Pelahatchie, where he is in charge of Youth Training Union and serves on the Youth Council.

Rating agencies upgrade Mississippi Power Co.

Citing only a "modest" need for future rate increases, two rating agencies have upgraded Mississippi Power Company's first mortgage bonds and preferred stock.

The ratings, which are used to determine the amount of interest a corporation pays on borrowed capital, were upgraded by Moody's Investor Service and Duff & Phelps.

Standard and Poor, a third rating agency, did not adjust the Gulfport-based utility's ratings, citing an uncertain regulatory climate as a possible threat to the future financial health of the company.

The upgradings were the first in the 60-year history of Mississippi Power Company.

"This is good news for our customers because it means we will pay less in interest costs in the future," Alan Baron, company president, said. "The interest we pay on borrowed money is reflected in our rates, so this will help stabilize our expenses and our requirements from our customers."

Moody's raised its rating on the first mortgage bonds and secured pollution control issues to single A-1 from single A-3. In addition, Moody's raised the company's unsecured pollution control bonds to single A-2 from BAA-1 and the preferred stock was raised to single A-1 from single A-3.

Ole Miss releases 4-album folklore set

Fannie Bell Chapman sings gospel songs, speaks in tongues and talks about the time God flashed lightning from a cloud as a sign that she should be a gospel singer and faith healer.

James (Son) Thomas sings 'Bull Cow Blues' and John Arnold sings 'Hobo's Meditation' by Jimmie Rodgers.

It's all on a four-album set of Mississippi folk music and commentary by musicians just released by The University of Mississippi's Center for the Study of Southern Culture and the Center for Southern Folklore in Memphis.

Each album recording is accompanied by a copy of song lyrics and an essay on the musicians and the history of music.

Dr. William Ferris, director of the University's center, said the albums "are a rich harvest of music from our state. They represent an exciting new step the university has taken in producing a series of recordings on Mississippi and her musical heritage."

The albums are 'Fannie Bell Chapman: Gospel Singer,' songs and commentary by the Centerville gospel singer and faith healer; 'Highway 61 Blues: James (Son) Thomas,' 20 years of music by the Leland bluesman; 'Bothered All the Time,' an anthology of music by blues singers recorded in the '60s in the Delta by Dr. Ferris; and 'Mississippi Folk Voices,' a re-issue of an anthology of country, blues, fife and drum, white and black gospel, sacred harp, and prison work chants recorded in the 1970s by Dr. Ferris.

The brightly colored album jackets feature art work by Mara Califf of Clarksdale. "The covers represent a major new direction for folk music albums," Dr. Ferris said. "Original art was commissioned for each album cover. It is the artist's rendering of the music into a visual statement."

The albums are on the Rooster Blues label, a recording company owned by Jim and Amy O'Neal, editors of the Living Blues magazine in Chicago.

Grants for the project included $4,000 from the National Endowment for the Arts and $8,500 from Skaggs Foundation of California, associated with the Skaggs store chain.

Records are $7 each or $22 for the four-album set. They are available at Square Books in Oxford and at the center. Records may be ordered by writing the Center for the Study of Southern Culture, The University of Mississippi, University, MS 38677.

Dr. Ferris said the center is also interested in producing records of the music of Jimmie Rodgers, sacred harp music, black choir music at Ole Miss, Oxford Folklife Festival music, and music and readings at the annual Faulkner conference.

"SOUNDSTAGE"

The Roches, three singing sisters who have been described as 'angels' as well as 'degenerate maniacs,' perform on "Soundstage" at 9:30 p.m. Friday, July 20, on Mississippi ETV.

On their agenda for the evening are "The Married Men," "The Largest Elizabeth in the World," "Nurds" and a tune once sought after by President Reagan as a campaign song: "Want Not Want."

Often interpreted as folk musicians, the Roches' performance is a little folksy but also includes jazz, blues and rock and roll.

Their songs are primarily performed a cappella or with the simple accompaniment of acoustic guitars. Among the elements that make their music unusual are their vocal arrangements and harmonies.

Summer squash, one of our more versatile vegetables, is a tasty addition to the appetizer tray or salad, sliced raw. It's also delicious sliced and steamed in the barest bit of water, and a dollop of butter, or cut up and baked awhile.

I'm also fond of squash sliced, along with sliced onion rings, then "smothered" down in a small amount of butter or margarine or bacon or ham drippings, with the usual dashes of pepper and hot pepper sauce.

Squash also combines well with other fresh vegetables—try yellow summer squash and zucchini and tomatoes and onions and bell (green) peppers and whatever else suits your fancy, all cooked down together, and store the memory away for wintry days!

But, for a true Southern style squash treat, stuff it! Of course, you are aware that a "stuffed" vegetable in the Southland can mean the hallowed out shell of the vegetable, which is then stuffed with the pulp and baked; or it can mean that you've precooked the vegetable, then "stuffed" it with savory additions, usually bread crumbs or crackers and so on, in a casserole.

Stuffed squash is one of my favorite dishes, and an especially tasty one is:

Edna's Squash Casserole
Edna Szymanski had served this at a recent pot-luck supper, and all the guests, including myself, besieged her for the recipe.

2 cups yellow squash, cooked, drained, mashed
1 can cream of chicken soup, undiluted
1 cup sour cream (commercial)
2 medium carrots, grated

Clarice Gustin, executive director of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, told us the other day there will be at least one Greyhound Bus leaving Diamondhead for Hancock County Day at the World's Fair in New Orleans.

Persons interested can call Sheryl Breland at 255-3707 for further information.

A ticket for bus and fair entrance is $30, or $17 for persons who have a pass for the fair.

Hancock County Day at the fair will be August 20 and several bus loads will be leaving from Choctaw Plaza in Waveland. Persons interested call Gustin at 467-9048.

As some of you may know in 1884 there was also a World Exposition in New Orleans, and that was 100 years ago.

The reason we mention this is because of information we acquired this week about a tie-in of those two events with local people.

Mississippi's Legislature passed an Act and appropriation therefor, announcing Francois Haas, whose address was listed as Jourdan River via Bay St. Louis as a Honorary Commissioner on behalf of the State of Mississippi at the World's Industrial and Cotton Exposition to be held in New Orleans, beginning the first Monday of December, 1884.

Then for for the 1884 World's Fair, a great-great granddaughter of Mr. Haas, Tish Haas of Bay St. Louis, is the director of the Mississippi Pavillion which was created by the Mississippi Legislature for 1884's World Exposition in New Orleans.

We have a copy of the Executive Order from 1884, and Robert Lowry was the governor of Mississippi.

Judge Griffin comments on forfeited funds order in Pearlington drug raid

Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis, Ms 39520

Dear Editor:

It has been brought to my attention that there is general conversation in Hancock to the effect that my order of Friday, July 6 placing the forfeited funds from the drug raid in Pearlington in the registry of the Court was because of a lack of confidence in the Board of Supervisors.

The purpose of this correspondence is to simply let the general public know through your paper that such an idea never entered the Court's mind. I simply thought under all the circumstances, and particularly to make the forfeiture effective and not subject to attack, that this was the best method to handle the matter.

I consider each member of the Board of Supervisors a personal friend and hold them in highest personal esteem.

They are competent public officials and I would not want anyone to think that I doubted their intellect, integrity or competence.

Sincerely,
J. Ruble Griffin

Mississippi products fit needs of developing Far East nations

TOUR OF FAR EAST

Based on a recent Mid South Trade Council business development trip to the Far East, the Marketing division of the Department of Economic Development sees increased potential for Mississippi exports in Hong Kong and the ASEAN region.

The ASEAN or Association of South Eastern Asian nations includes the countries Indonesia, Malaysia, Thailand and Singapore which were visited along with Hong Kong during the April 26-May 11 MSTC "catalogue" shows.

Bill McGinnis, director, MDED Marketing division, says that 53 Mississippi companies were represented with informational material during the five stops.

"We estimate that approximately 3,000 trade leads were generated during the tour," says McGinnis, "and considering that the ASEAN region has traditionally been a stronger trading partner with the rest of the Far East, Europe, and Australia, I was particularly pleased with these numbers."

A significant factor favoring trade between Mississippi and the ASEAN region, the marketing director points out, is the "fit" between Mississippi-manufactured products and the needs of these countries.

"These are developing nations that can use Mississippi's technology in forestry, construction materials, agricultural equipment, and other manufactured products in expanding their economies infrastructure," he said.

The Far East tour was the third collective venture by the Mid State Trade Council since its formation in June of 1983.

The MSTC consists of the state marketing divisions from Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee, and the International Trade Mart of New Orleans.

SOME PEOPLE HAVE PROBLEMS READING—The Salvation Army has a collection box located at the intersection of North Second and State Streets for clothing, and as this photo shows a lot of other items are being left for the elements. A large sign is posted on the side of the collection box requesting persons with furniture or appliances to please call 863-2355 for pickup. Whenever furniture is exposed to the elements, it is completely destroyed and is of no use to anyone, in addition it is an eyesore. We are hoping everyone will continue to make donations to the Salvation Army, as they do a fine job in our area, but if you have furniture or appliances, call them, we are sure they will be happy to pick them up. Handle with care— U.S. Constitution a living document

"The Sacred Rights of Mankind are not to be rummaged for among old parchments or dusty records. They are written in the whole volume of human nature, by the hand of the divinity itself; and can never be erased or obscured by mortal power."
—Alexander Hamilton, 1775

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, sixth in 'The New Federalist Papers' series and entitled 'Natural Rights And Constitutional Amendments' by David Tucker, fell of the Claremont Institute for the Study of Statesmanship, is supplied to The Sea Coast Echo by Public Research Syndicated in Claremont, Calif.

The Constitution is designed to secure natural rights, and the amending process enables us to adjust the Constitution when necessary to secure those rights.

Recently there have been calls for a new constitutional convention to propose specific amendments to the Constitution.

If successful, this would be the first convention since 1787, and the question arises, where should the convention look for standards to judge these proposed amendments?

Dr. Tucker proposes that the standards of the 1787 convention—man's natural rights—have the same vitality today they did nearly 200 years ago.

By DAVID TUCKER

We declared our independence from Great Britain in 1776 in order to institute a government that would protect every citizen's natural rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

The work begun by the Declaration of Independence was completed by the Constitution adopted in 1788, for the Constitution established a government that would secure what Hamilton had called "the Sacred Rights of Mankind."

In a larger sense, however, the Constitution could not complete the Revolution.

As Hamilton had written, the rights of man are not to be found in any document. They exist in nature.

These natural rights are the standards by which the Constitution—the document—must be judged.

That is why our constitution has provisions for amendment. When we judge our constitution by the law higher than the Constitution, we may decide that it needs to be modified.

In the nearly 200 years of its existence our Constitution has been amended 26 times. We have, for example, adopted a Bill of Rights, prohibited slavery and the consumption of intoxicating liquors, and given women the vote.

In every case, whether or not the proposed amendment is adopted, the debate over ratification ultimately centers on whether it makes the Constitution and our government more just.

Periodically, then, we bring our Constitution into the light of day, examine it, and debate its justice. That is why after 200 years our Constitution has not grown musty.

Judging the justice of the Constitution and amending it is a right and a duty. It is also a danger. The standard of justice by which we attempt to live as a nation and judge the Constitution—respect for the rights of all men—is so high and so demanding that we often fail to measure up. We become dissatisfied at the injustice we see and seek to correct it.

Here the danger enters. James Madison, justly called the Father of the Constitution, warned that too frequent attempts to amend the Constitution might deprive it of respect.

If we are constantly reminded of the Constitution's imperfections, he thought, we may begin to think it unworthy of our support.

If we do not support it, our political life could be thrown into turmoil. And in turmoil we could not enjoy our rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

As Madison realized, exercising our right to amend the constitution could lead to a situation where we could not enjoy our rights.

No Founding Father considered this problem more thoughtfully than Madison, yet he offered no solution to it. He knew that a free people must have both the right to amend their constitution and a stable government.

Neither could be given up. Accepting both—and the tension between them—Madison offered some advice. He recognized that justice might be pursued until it threatened to destroy stable government and therefore liberty as well.

So he advised those who pursued justice to remember that without a stable government and liberty, there could be no justice.

As in Madison's day, so in our own, the constant requirement to balance criticism and respect when we estimate the Constitution remains.

This duty becomes less of a burden when we remember that we have reason to respect our Constitution. It has endured for 200 years, through civil and foreign war, national expansion and unprecedented economic and social change.

It is more than just adaptable, however. It continues to embody and serve the rights of mankind.

It continues to express our fundamental sense of justice, that the rights of man are etched by a sun beam for all men to see and to share.

In a world so darkened by religious and political oppression as ours now is, the excellence of our Constitution continues to shine forth as triumphantly as it did in the days of Hamilton and Madison.

SBA

Focus on Small Business

U.S. Small Business Administration

By Dorothy A. Overall
Public Information Officer
Biloxi SBA Office

Q: As a small business owner, I've been rating my sales representatives on volume of sales they generate. Is this a smart tack to take?

A: Not necessarily. Sales volume by itself won't always tell you how much profit (or loss) you're making on each sales rep.

You must analyze the profitability of sales volume brought in by each sales person.

A sales rep calling on customers in a very competitive market may have to reduce price markups to make a sale, and so his sales volume may be actually costing you money.

Any criteria for measuring sales performance probably should include sales volume.

But it also should include things like the number of calls made on existing accounts, the number of new accounts opened, dollars spent on entertaining customers and real contribution to your profits—which you can compute by subtracting your total costs (including the sales rep's time and expenses) from the sales total.

Q: Is it really necessary to train the employees in my small business?

A: Not only is it necessary, but it could be vital.

Without proper training, your employees could fail to live up to their potential, with the result of your business not performing properly.

But even more important, a small business—unlike a major corporation—has a small margin for error.

Properly trained employees can be more efficient to help offset the lack of economies of scale.

Don't fear that training will cost the company all of its assets. Today's computer-based education reduces the cost of training from the old, traditional methods.

Computer training can be conducted at the site of your business. Courses such as planning, accounting, marketing, purchasing and management training are all now available.

The Small Business Administration can help you with training materials and information on training courses.

A Message for the Congress

"Americans don't resent paying taxes. They resent not being able to figure out that their share really is."

That's the claim of Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Roscoe L. Egger, who also charges that "complexity and inequity are gnawing away at the system's backbone."

Chances are he's right, considering that the House Ways and Means Committee just reported out a tax bill 1,023 pages long.

And the tax bill the Congress is working on this year is the third major tax bill in four years.

In pointing to the complexity and confusion of the present federal tax system, Egger points out that an estimated 40 percent of American taxpayers rely on third party assistance today just to complete the forms, that, increasingly, business decisions are tax-motivated rather than profit-motivated and that an attorney today needs 33 feet of shelf space for the Internal Revenue Code and its supporting documents.

The time has come, concludes Egger, to get the nation's revenue-raising system back on track.

That's a message Mississippians need to be sending to their congressional delegation.

Call my office at 601-435-4566 (Biloxi) or write to SBA, GNL Bldg., 2nd Floor, Biloxi, MS 39530

Besides, if you have properly trained employees, you can take time off for a vacation.

Q: Is the notion of 'time theft' a serious problem for small businesses?

A: If you ask most small business owners, they would like to see 'time theft' considered a felony.

The cost of time stolen from employers reaches billions of dollars each year. Examples of 'time theft' range from taking too long a lunch hour to attending a father's funeral twice in the same year.

From an employer's view, doing something about 'time thefts' might be compared to trying to change the weather. There's a lot of talk but rarely much action—both in large and small businesses. After all, who among us is 100 percent pure when it comes to the following examples of stealing time on the job:

- Coming to work late
- Leaving work early
- Excessive socializing with co-workers
- Taking long lunch hours
- Eating lunch on the job—and then going out for a full lunch hour
- Doing personal business on the job
- Taking many coffee breaks
- Operating another business while at work
- Making personal telephone calls
- Deliberately slowing down work and then later working overtime for extra pay
- Taking sick leave when not sick

Many of these examples are flagrant abuses and should not be tolerated, but only an Ebenezer Scrooge fails to overlook a worker who is occasionally late for work or takes a little extra time for lunch.

From the view of most bosses, moderation appears to be the key word in the area of 'time theft.'

Conservationists hear Lott

By DENA BISNETTE
Mississippi Congressman Trent Lott visited NASA's National Space Technology Labs Friday as guest speaker for the Mississippi Association of Conservation Districts Area Six summer meeting.

The meeting, which was the first the association has held at NSTL, was attended by 180 members of MACD and its ladies auxiliary. Participants represented 17 southeastern Mississippi counties covering an area from Meridian to the Gulf Coast and including Lott's congressional district.

Lott, who said he has visited six of the 12 counties in his district within the last two weeks, addressed the MACD representatives at the pavilion in the NSTL recreation area.

Lott talked about debating issues on the floor of the House of Representatives and looking for support from other representatives. "I think the problem is we don't always get together and look at what our goal is, what problems we need to solve," he said.

He also talked about progress in Congress. "This year has worked out better in Washington than usual. We've been able to move the appropriations bills faster than we normally do, and the house has already moved eight of our 13 appropriations bills."

Lott said the progress being made with the appropriations bills will assist schools, social programs and agricultural programs, including those related to conservation.

He also discussed progress in areas not directly related to conservation, including reforms in immigration, criminal prosecution and bankruptcy laws.

Lott compared MACD Area Six with North Mississippi, saying both areas face similar soil conservation problems and stressing a need for a more even division of soil conservation funds in the state.

He also praised MACD participants for their work. "Soil conservation and the work you've done with soil stewardship is a very honorable profession and is very important to Mississippi today," the Congressman said.

Before leaving the meeting, Lott answered questions from MACD members and was presented a certificate of appreciation by MACD Jackson County Commissioner Benny Goff.

In addition to hearing Lott, the MACD members toured NSTL as part of the meeting.

Hancock schools initiate program for parents, students

Hancock County School Attendance Counselor Frank McNeil has initiated an extended summer education program for students of compulsory school age who failed during the past school session due to excessive absences.

In addition to the program for children, a special program for parents will be held. McNeil has initiated the parents' program in lieu of filing formal charges against the parents for violation of Mississippi's compulsory school attendance-emotional neglect law.

The courses are designed to provide the children with remedial education and to explain the importance of an elementary education to the parents. Classes for both groups will be conducted at the same time.

The program will be taught at North Bay Elementary School by certified teachers who have volunteered their time for the project. These teachers include Sherri Ponder, a special education teacher from Pass Christian; and two elementary teachers from the Hancock County School District, Sarah Baird and Kinta Maloney.

The program has met with approval from both the Hancock County and Bay St. Louis school districts, according to McNeil.

The word queue is the only word in the English language that is still pronounced the same way when the last four letters are removed.

Armed robbery reported at Domino's Pizza

By NAN PATTON EHRRBRIGHT

Two suspects are being sought in an armed robbery at Domino's Pizza on US-90, Bay St. Louis Police Chief Douglas J. Williams reported Friday.

Williams said the robbery occurred shortly after 12:30 a.m. Friday morning.

According to Johnny Watkze, a restaurant employee who witnessed the robbery, Williams said, two black males entered the store when another employee left to deliver a pizza.

The men, armed with a .38-caliber revolver, ordered Watkze to turn over all the money in the store.

When Watkze handed over a small amount of cash from the cash drawer, he told police officials, one of the men became angry and threatened to kill him if he didn't open the safe.

Williams said the men got away with several small bills taken from a bag in the safe, amounting to approximately $40.

Shortly before the robbery, Williams said, Domino's received a telephone order for a pizza.

It was that order the delivery man took when he left Domino's and the two men entered.

But, Williams said, it was subsequently learned the persons at the address given with the telephone order had not ordered pizza.

Williams also reported that while Bay police officials were on routine patrol searching for the armed robbery suspects, they discovered that vehicles were stripped at both Frank Hill Chevrolet and Schuffert Pontiac.

The damages to the vehicles has not yet been assessed, Williams said.

Bay police officers investigating the armed robbery include Chief Investigator Murray Ladner, Investigator Joe Pica and Patromen Scott Anderson and Herbert Stuebe.

Former Hancock educator named to Harrison post

A former Hancock County educator has joined the Harrison County school district staff as director of curriculum and instruction.

Douglas McQueen, a native of Piquette and now a resident of Biloxi, has worked in Coast schools since he began teaching English and social studies at Ocean Springs Junior High and Ocean Springs High School in 1967-68.

From 1968-77 McQueen taught English to tenth graders and students in college-bound programs in Bay St. Louis public schools.

During that time he organized and taught a remedial reading program for secondary students.

McQueen was Bay High's Star Teacher in 1972.

The next year he was named principal of Waveland Elementary School.

In 1977 McQueen became principal of Beauvoir Elementary School in Biloxi, where he served on a committee that reorganized the elementary reading program in that community.

He has served as assistant principal at Biloxi's Nichols Junior High School since 1980.

While at Nichols he helped implement an assertive discipline program adopted for use in all Biloxi schools next year.

He also helped rewrite the teacher handbook and served on the Biloxi Schools Research and Development Council.

McQueen has served on the state textbook board and on a state committee studying teacher certification.

He is an honors graduate in English from Pearl River Junior College and the University of Southern Mississippi, and holds a master's degree in reading from USM.

McQueen was named to the $31,000-a-year job last week by the Harrison County school board.

TRAINS

"Love Those Trains," a nostalgic journey into and around the world with trains, will be rebroadcast at 8 p.m. Wednesday, July 25, on Mississippi ETV.

This National Geographic Special, first seen on ETV in February, also can be seen at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, July 26, and at approximately 10:10 p.m. Saturday, July 28.

In addition to viewing some of the most famous trains in the world, viewers will be introduced to the people who love trains—the hoboes who gather annually in an Iowa town; the hobbyists who ride, build and collect trains; and the dispatchers, railroad police, firemen and veteran and novice engineers who run the trains.

"Train people," says the special's producer Jim Lipscomb, "all belong to a worldwide fraternity, on that has no membership requirements except the love of trains."

Summer is the perfect time for salads—not just the tossed green leafy variety, but those made up of chunks of hard-boiled eggs, tender pieces of chicken, crunchy onion, a touch of mustard, finely-ground ham, old-fashioned cooked salad dressing and cubed potatoes.

These salads have long been the backbone of church suppers, picnics and family gatherings because they are nutritious, convenient and easy to prepare.

As is true of any recipe, the quality of the individual ingredients will determine its success.

This applies not only to the main ingredient but also to the supporting ones.

Perhaps the most important ingredient in salads is the dressing. Store-bought mayonnaise and salad dressings are commonly used, but old-fashioned cooked salad dressing can give your salads a different and appealing flavor.

Try the following dressing recipes to determine which goes best with your chicken, ham, turkey, tuna, potato and other salads.

Mayonnaise

2 egg yolks or 1 whole egg
2 T. vinegar or lemon juice, divided
1 t. sugar
1 t. dry mustard
½ t. salt
Dash cayenne pepper
1 C. soybean oil, divided

In small mixing bowl beat together egg yolks, 1 tablespoon vinegar, sugar, mustard, salt and cayenne at medium speed until blended. Continue beating, adding ¼ cup soybean oil drop by drop. Add remaining oil, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating constantly. Chill thoroughly. Store in refrigerator.

To prepare in blender:

Measure ¼ cup oil and all other ingredients into blender container. Blend at high speed five seconds. Blending at high speed, add remaining oil very slowly until thick and smooth. (If necessary, turn off blender occasionally and clean sides with rubber spatula.) Chill thoroughly. Store in refrigerator. Makes 1½ cups.

Boiled Dressing

2 T. flour
2 T. sugar
½ t. salt
½ t. dry mustard
1/8 t. cayenne pepper
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
¼ C. white vinegar
½ C. milk
2 T. butter

In small saucepan mix together flour, sugar, salt, mustard and cayenne. Blend in egg yolks and milk. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened, 10 to 15 minutes. Add vinegar and butter, stirring until butter is melted. Cool. Store, tightly covered in refrigerator. Makes one cup.

Half 'n' Half Dressing

1 C. sugar
2 T. flour
2 eggs, beaten
1 T. prepared mustard
2 T. milk
Dash salt
½ C. cider vinegar
½ C. water
1 C. mayonnaise

In saucepan, combine ingredients in order listed, except mayonnaise. Over medium heat cook and stir constantly until thickened. Allow to cool, then stir in mayonnaise. Store in refrigerator. Use for chicken, tuna, egg or potato salad. Makes two cups.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The city of Bay St. Louis is considering applying to the Governor's office of Federal-State Programs, Department of Planning and Policy, for a Small Cities Community Development Block Grant. The State of Mississippi has allocated approximately $30 million that will be made available to cities and counties on a competitive basis to undertake eligible community development activities. These funds must be used for one of the following purposes:

1. To benefit low and moderate income persons; or
2. To aid in the prevention or elimination of slums or blight; or
3. To meet other community development needs having a particular urgency because existing conditions pose a serious and immediate threat to the health or welfare of the community where other financial resources are not available to meet such needs.

The activities for which these funds may be used are in the areas of housing, public facilities and services, and economic development, more specific details regarding the eligible activities, program requirements, and the rating system will be provided at a public hearing which will be held at City hall on July 20 at 6:00 p.m.

The purpose of this hearing is to obtain citizen input into the development of the application. All interested citizens, agencies and organizations are urged to attend.

Booklet offered for asthmatics

The Mississippi Lung Association has a new booklet for asthma victims and their families.

The 28-page book was written for adults who have asthma, but teenagers who have the disease may find it equally interesting and informative.

Mary Jane Green of Grenada, MLA president, says the new educational material provides a better understanding of asthma plus self-help suggestions to help patients prevent and control asthma episodes.

"Asthma affects about seven million adults and children in the United States," she noted.

"Asthmatic episodes make breathing difficult and cause wheezing, coughing, rapid breathing or 'choking' for air."

The new booklet is designed to help asthma patients administer their prescribed medicines correctly, avoid factors that trigger their asthma episodes and know when to call for medical help.

The book is also a tool for physicians and other health care personnel to help answer patients' questions.

Some of the topics covered in the booklet include information on what can trigger an asthma episode, how to control the episodes, how diet affects asthma patients, what different kinds of medicine for asthma are being used, how to deal with second-hand smoke and, in general, how to live better and feel better, even with asthma.

The book is available free as a service of the "Christmas Seal Association".

Anyone interested in receiving "The Asthma Handbook" or other asthma educational material should contact the Mississippi Lung Association, P.O. Box 9865, Jackson 39206, telephone 362-5453.

Methodism changes with times during first half of 20th century

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the seventh in a series of articles by Katrina (Mrs. C.C. Sr.) McDonald of Bay St. Louis, member of the Main Street United Methodist Church here, on the founding and development of Methodism in America in conjunction with the national celebration of the Bicentennial of Methodism in America.

By Katrina McDonald

In the years prior to World War I there was much sympathy in the churches for working out ways through negotiation and arbitration to settle international differences.

War was abhorrent, and many church members boldly stood up for pacifism. However, when the United States officially entered the war in 1917 much of this sentiment faded, and in general it was considered that only the unpatriotic refused to fight.

The war was costly in lives and resources but it also heralded a new period in world history.

The many changes brought about in technology, manufacturing and transportation, created by the war effort, fashioned a very different society, especially for the Western nations directly involved. It is true that major wars usually bring about great social changes for both sides.

The churches which now make up United Methodism were like other denominations in expressing their loyalty.

Patriotic sermons were delivered, Liberty Bonds were sold in some churches and the war effort was supported in many ways.

It may have been natural, but regrettable nevertheless, that a wave of anti-

German sentiment brought some threats and insults against German Methodists, the United Brethren and Evangelicals. No matter how loyal, they were subject at times to abuse because of their German ancestry.

The Treaty of Versailles brought an end to World War I and churches could turn their energies in other directions.

One of the growing social concerns was temperance and this was given high priority. Large amounts of literature were printed and distributed. Societies formed and members were asked to abstain from alcoholic beverages.

Aided by strong campaigns, prohibition became law in 1920. It was not repealed until 1933.

To this day, United Methodism encourages abstinence from alcoholic beverages.

Doctrinal disputes in this period came about when liberal Protestant theology was challenged by a militant Fundamentalism which accused it of undermining the very essence of the Christian message.

Also it was assaulted by Neo-Orthodoxy the theological movement led by Karl Barth, Emil Brunner and the Niebuhrs.

All three of these viewpoints were well represented in the forerunners of United Methodism.

Despite theological differences, churches continued to show interest in cooperating with other denominations and healing schisms had taken place earlier in their own histories.

A division which had taken place in 1891 was repaired in 1922 when two factions united as the Evangelical Church.

A more important union, at least from the standpoint of statistics, took place among three Methodist bodies as representatives began meeting in 1935 to forge a plan of union. They proposed six administrative units to be called jurisdictions. Five of these were geographical and the sixth was racial. The latter included black churches of the nation, no matter where they were located.

Black Methodists were troubled by this prospect and opposed the plan, but they were over-ruled. Methodist Protestants favored the union although it meant accepting episcopal government.

Following appropriate votes of the three general conferences and annual conferences, the three were united in 1939 into The Methodist Church. The United Methodist Church including United Brethren and Evangelicals came later, on April 23, 1968.

At the formation of Methodist Church in 1939, there were 7.7 million members, and the world was again preparing for international strife on an unprecedented scale.

Decorating the church were arrangements of white and pink stock, white fugi mums and fern greenery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white satin with fitted bodice, sheer yoke, schiffli collar and leg-o-mutton sleeves adorned with 'venise lace. The basque waistline gave way to a full skirt and chapel train. A headpiece of matching lace held her fingertip veil of illusion.

Deidre Adams of Shreveport, La. was maid of honor. Matron of honor was Ellen Smith of Hattiesburg, sister of the bride.

Bridesmaids were Joann Hanson,

They carried clutch bouquets of pink roses, freesia, baby's breath and plumosa fern and wore hair ornaments of pink statice and baby's breath.

Miss Rebecca Smith of Hattiesburg, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Ring bearer was Bryan Turcotte of Atlanta, Ga.

SHOWING OFF HIS BRAWN while singing "Hello My Baby," Chad Campbell impresses old-fashioned bathing beauty Bonnie Campbell in the Brigham Young University Young Ambassadors' musical spectacular. The variety show recreates favorite American eras. The group will present a special program at the Waveland Ward Chapel of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Young Ambassadors to perform in Waveland

The Young Ambassadors, world-acclaimed traveling musical troupe from Brigham Young University, will present a special musical program at the Waveland Ward Chapel of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, located at the corner of McLaurin Street and Nicholson Avenue, on Sunday, July 15.

The program is free and open to the public and begins at 7 p.m.

Traveling throughout the United States and abroad, the Young Ambassadors use their nonstop exuberance, combined with bright costumes and lively songs and dances, to spread a message of brotherhood and friendship.

They first entered the international spotlight at Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan. Since that time the Young Ambassadors have entertained numerous international groups and dignitaries, including President Ronald Reagan, Queen Sinikit of Thailand, Madame Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, Mother Teresa and Jordan's King Hussein.

They performed in China where the usually reserved Chinese audience forgot their customs and clapped their hands and stamped their feet, and in the Soviet Union where their energetic performance was filmed and later broadcast to an estimated 150 million people over 11 time zones.

They were featured in a seven-week engagement at the 1982 Tennessee World's Fair and at the grand opening of Tokyo Disneyland.

During last year's tours the Young Ambassadors performed live for more than 80,000 people and appeared on radio and television programs reaching 25 million others, according to the group's spokesman.

In addition to their travels, rehearsals and shows, each member of the troupe carried full class loads at BYU and is active in church and community affairs. Several of them work part time.

Each year hundreds of Brigham Young University students apply and audition for acceptance in Young Ambassadors. Those selected are chosen for their singing, dancing and musical skills, and also for their attitudes about life and their abilities to express those attitudes.

Young Ambassadors are now appearing in an All-American musical spectacular on the Cornet Stage near the Mississippi and Louisiana Pavilions at the New Orleans World's Fair. They will present performances Mondays through Saturdays at 6, 7, 8 and 9 p.m. through Aug. 16.

In addition, they will appear at the Fair's Quality Seal Amphitheatre July 14 and 16, and Aug. 6, 7 and 8.

Their Sunday night appearance in the Waveland Chapel of the Latter-day Saints Church will include spiritual music written by the group's director and testimonies from the troupe members' individual lives and personal experiences.

IRS offers tips on tax records

Good tax records are essential to preparing a complete and accurate income tax return, Internal Revenue Service officials say.

To help you determine what records you need, the IRS publishes a free pamphlet, IRS Publication 552, "Recordkeeping for Individuals and a List of Tax Publications," will help you determine the types of records to keep, such as receipts and cancelled checks that provide the information you need if you itemize deductions.

The publication also shows how you can keep track of earnings and expenses for tax purposes, what records are usually needed for tax return preparation, and how long you should keep those records.

You can write the IRS and call the toll-free forms/tax information number (1-800-241-3860) to obtain your free copy of Publication 552.

Preventive measures told against child abduction

By Norine Barnes
Child Development
Specialist
Cooperative
Extension Service

The disappearance of a child is one of the most frightening things that can happen to a parent.

Parents can't be with a child every moment, but one moment is all it takes for someone to abduct an unattended youngster.

Some preventive steps can be taken by parents. These steps can teach children to avoid abduction and seek help if needed.

Preventive Measures

Use a code word with children. Instruct him or her to go with no one, including a relative or friend, who does not know that word. It's wise to change the code word occasionally. Praise the child who follows these instructions.

Teach children how to call home both locally and long distance. Children are old enough to know their own phone number by the time they are three. Remind children that if they are confused, all they need do is dial the operator and ask her to call the police. Make sure a young child knows his/her name, address and city.

Don't buy T-shirts with a child's name on it. Such a T-shirt puts a stranger on a first-name basis. Knowing the name of a child may be the most important toll an abductor can have.

Encourage children to buddy-up because children like to do things in pairs, anyway. It's very important that children be accompanied, particularly in vulnerable situations such as walking to and from school or a neighborhood park or the grocery store. Warn children never to enter strange cars, houses or abandoned buildings.

Be Wary of Strangers

Instruct youngsters to take a good look at any stranger hanging around or driving around the neighborhood or school yard. Advise the child to observe carefully, then write down the license number in the dirt with a stick.

Encourage children to ask adults for help but point out the difference between a child approaching an adult for help and an adult approaching a child. Remind them that adults don't need to ask kids for help. Adults might need brief directions, but they don't need a child to take them somewhere or to help them look for a lost pet. The latter request is a most common lure in child abduction.

Fingerprinting your child can help immensely in a search. It saves time and effort and provides positive identification, often a problem when much time has elapsed after a disappearance.

Talk About the Problem

To give children the skills they need to protect themselves, adults must openly discuss abduction and its prevention with their youngsters.

Most grown-ups hate the idea of alerting their children to potential threats and scaring them with the fact that sometimes adults do harm children. Failure to do this, however, can make your child an unwitting victim, a much more abhorrent thought.

Flood insurance info announced

Fifteen years ago, on Aug. 17, 1969, the Mississippi Gulf Coast was struck by Hurricane Camille.

Winds in excess of 200 miles per hour and seas in excess of 25 feet devastated the Coast. Property damage was estimated at over $1.5 billion.

Because the hurricane season began June 1 and will extend through November, the Mississippi Research and Development Center has chosen this time to increase public awareness of the benefits of the federal government's National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP).

Residents of Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties are eligible to participate in the regular phase of the NFIP.

In this program single-family homes can be insured up to $185,000 on structure and $60,000 on contents.

Small business can insure up to $250,000 on structure and $300,000 on contents.

Additional information is available from Willard B. Inman, State Coordinator, NFIP, Mississippi R & D Center, 3825 Ridgewood Rd., Jackson 39211, telephone 982-6376.

Countywide drainage plans needed in state

By Dr. Bob Chapin
Coordinator, Land Use Center
Extension Service

Every county in Mississippi needs a countywide plan for drainage. This is particularly noticeable in May when floods hit the state.

Drainage plans must consider water coming in from higher counties and water going out into lower counties. Drainage plans must start with the identification of watersheds.

A watershed is the land lying between two hills on which water flows downward to a stream in the valley below. The smallest watershed is the drainboard flowing into a kitchen sink. The largest watershed affecting our state is the Mississippi River which drains 35 states and five Canadian provinces.

Lowlands are the hardest areas in which to plan drainage, because they are flat and it is difficult to find a place for the water to drain.

As forests are cleared for pasture, cropland and buildings, run-off is increased. Drain channels have to carry more water. Each roadway built across a stream tends to restrict the movement of this increasing supply of water as it passes through culverts, drain pipes and under bridges.

A roadway elevated to protect the road from floods becomes a large dam across drainage channels. Since bridges are costly, they are often not made long enough to allow sufficient water to pass beneath.

In rain storms backwater gathers and floods areas in the waterway upstream from the road embankment.

A drainage plan can forecast these problems and suggest provisions for preventing some of the flooding.

To give an idea of how much water falls as rain, look at a half gallon milk carton in your refrigerator. This much water falls on every square foot of ground when one inch of rain occurs.

As it flows downhill, it accumulates first in a ditch, then in a stream and finally is discharged from rivers into the Gulf of Mexico.

When about five inches of rain fall in 24 hours, flooding generally occurs. Floods occur because two and one-half gallons of water on an area the size of a sheet of typing paper flowing into a drain channel is more than the average stream can carry in its normal bank.

A county drainage plan identifies and protects major watershed drain channels from manmade obstructions. These obstructions can reduce a channel making it too small to carry a reasonable flow of storm water.

Water problems include flooding, drainage, erosion, bank stabilization and pollution control. A good county drainage requires eight steps:

1. Retain planner to identify watershed. Plot areas subject to flooding.

2. Inventory channel restrictions that can be removed.

3. Note changing land use trends that will affect run-off.

4. Develop project plans and adopt needed regulations.

5. Set priorities for improvements.

6. Fund and construct projects over time.

7. Inspect and maintain projects completed.

Mississippi leads nation in tree farms

Mississippi now has 5,741 tree farmers, according to the American Forest Institute and Mississippi Forestry Association, Inc.

The latest statistics from AFI show that Mississippi has lead the nation in the number of tree farms since 1955. The total number of state acres in tree farms on Jan. 1 was almost 4.2 million.

The American Tree Farm System, launched in 1941 by the nation's wood using industries, is a program to encourage private forest owners to grow trees as a crop.

Currently, the system is a function of the American Forest Foundation, administered by the American Forest Institute. Professional foresters from industry, government, and consulting firms give time to its maintenance.

The program in Mississippi is sponsored by the Mississippi Forestry Association, Inc., an organization of about 1,400 individuals, companies, and groups interested in forestry. MFA's Tree Farm committee, with Richard Sones of Columbia as chairman, operates under the guidance of the American Forest Institute in arranging for foresters to inspect and certify Tree Farm applications. Reinspections are scheduled at five-year intervals to determine that membership qualifications and being maintained.

Cash benefits to the tree farmer, and help in meeting the nation's growing need for wood and paper products, are not the only benefits of the system, says the American Forest Institute. Added advantages pointed out by the Institute as becoming more important daily, because of population growth and increasing urbanization, are outdoor recreation and aesthetic value, watershed production, and improved wildlife habitat.

Upon certification, Tree Farmers receive a certificate and the familiar metal Tree Farm sign. "When you see a Tree Farm sign," said Bob Izlar, executive vice president of Mississippi Forestry Association, Inc., "you know the owner of the land is carrying out forestry practices that meet the basic requirements for a Tree Farm."

Contests to select the outstanding tree farmer of the year are held on local, state, regional and national levels. Opportunities are also provided for tree farmers to attend conferences, field days, study tours, and seminars on tree farming. They also receive the American Tree Farmer magazine from the American Forest Institute.

Additional information about becoming a Tree Farmer can be obtained from Mississippi Forestry Association, 620 North State St., Jackson, MS 29202-3398.
